UCF Mission: Promote interdisciplinarity in its programs; foster learning communities; achieve operational excellence; make innovative use of technology. Unit Mission: Students will become skilled in Spanish language/linguistics and in Spanish/Hispanic literatures and cultures. Graduates of the program are prepared to enter graduate programs in Spanish, to teach Spanish at high school level or to work in international trade and tourism. Courses in Spanish business language and culture will greatly enhance the graduates' prospects for working in commercial fields.	1. 50% of MA graduates will demonstrate knowledge of Spanish and Hispanic literature and linguistics.	1.a. All graduating MA students will be required to take a comprehensive exam on literary topics. The examination will be assessed by the departmental faculty member. 1.b. A departmental survey measuring professional development and program success will be distributed to graduates of the MA program over a three-year period.	1.a. Three (100%) of the graduating M.A. students have successfully passed the literature component of the comprehensive exam. 1.b. Survey results indicated that three (100%) of graduates of the M.A. program consider that their graduate education has adequately prepared them in their field. At least two (66%) feel that it has also made them competitive for advancement in their careers.	1.a. Due to the lack of a critical mass, no further actions will be taken until the results of three more semesters can be taken into account. Current expectations are based on the fact that students have access to an excellent selection of literature courses and are given every opportunity to perform satisfactorily. 1.b. Due to the lack of a critical mass, no further actions will be taken until the results of three more years can be taken into account. Surveys for program alumni should be conducted every two years to monitor professional development.

	3. 50% of MA graduates will have demonstrated by graduation professional involvement in the field.	3.a. Departmental surveys will be conducted to determine student attendance at professional conferences. 3.b. Departmental surveys will be conducted to determine whether students presented at professional meetings or submitted articles for publication.	3.a. Two (66%) program graduates have attended professional meetings and conferences. Only about eight (15%) of currently enrolled students have attended the same. This lower percentage is expected at this point since the majority of new graduate students will be attending their first conference in the Spring. 3.b. Eight graduate students (15%) have actively presented papers at professional meetings. In addition, two graduates (66%) have publications in literary journals.	3.a. Results in this category are expected to increase considerably after the Spring. The Department will continue to maintain its policy of encouraging and, whenever possible, supporting graduate student participation in conferences and professional events. 3.b. It was decided that further student participation in professional meetings will be a priority for the department. The Graduate Coordinator will oversee SAGA (Spanish Graduate Association) in its effort to organize graduate student participation and organization of conferences.
